REALTOR® RESILIENCY REPORT

This communication from NAR to all Members describes the many ways NAR is working to guide and support REALTORS® and the real estate industry during the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic. Every week, you'll find up-to-date, relevant information on how to ensure your health and safety, the virus' impact on the economy and your business, its impact on NAR activities, and what NAR is doing to help.

Executive Summary

- Today the IRS issued guidance that addresses the 1031 like-kind extension requests and the Opportunity Zone extension requests. NAR advocated for both issues to the Treasury Department in the past three weeks. Please see below and go to NAR.realtor/coronavirus for more information.
- As circumstances concerning the coronavirus (COVID-19) continue to evolve, the NAR Leadership Team wants to assure members, staff, and partner organizations that your safety and well-being remain our top priority.
- In keeping with our Core Value of “Members First,” NAR continues to closely monitor the situation, and has released “Coronavirus: A Guide for REALTORS®” to provide guidance at NAR.Realtor/coronavirus. This site is regularly updated.

1. Ensuring your health and safety

NAR continues to closely monitor this evolving public health crisis, and is providing updates and guidance from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and others as quickly as possible.

To reduce the risk of exposure, follow these CDC recommendations: wash your hands for at least 20 seconds with soap and water; avoid close contact with people infected; cover your mouth and nose with a tissue or your elbow when sneezing or coughing; clean and disinfect frequently touched surfaces. If you are sick, stay home. The CDC recommends avoiding social gatherings in groups. For the latest information, please go to the CDC's website, cdc.gov/coronavirus.

REALTORS® have a special responsibility to take all necessary health and safety precautions, including those ordered by your state or locality, whichever are more strict.

Even if Real Estate is deemed essential in your area, we strongly encourage you to use virtual showings and limit in-person activity in all other aspects of the real estate transaction to get us through this crisis. For a list of states that have implemented stay-at-home orders, please visit here.

NAR has also released “Coronavirus: A Guide for REALTORS®” online to provide guidance to members on some common transactional issues due to COVID-19, including open house guidance. The guide is updated frequently, please find it here.

2. Impact on the economy and members' businesses

With a spring Real Estate slowdown expected, NAR survey finds many REALTORS® hopeful for post-pandemic market rebound

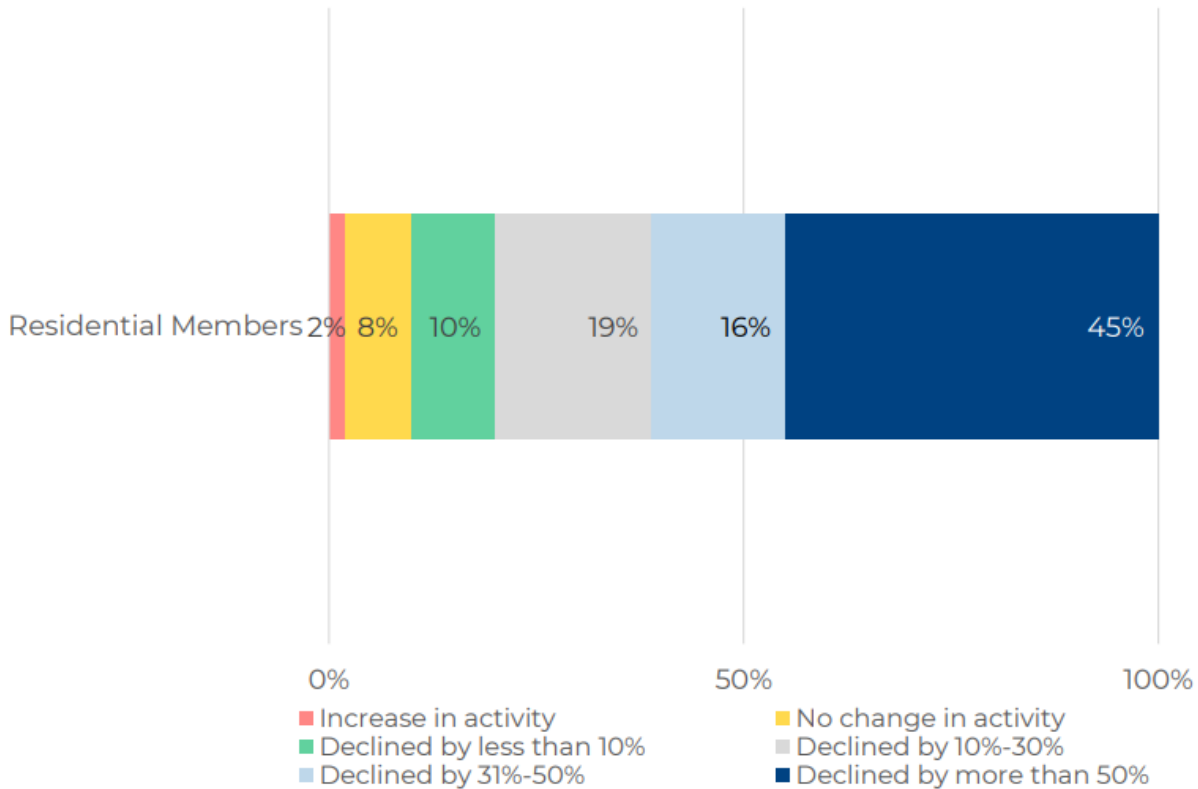

With an expected slowdown in spring real estate business activity, many REALTORS® remain hopeful for a post-pandemic market rebound, according to a new survey from NAR. The majority of REALTORS® believe buyers and sellers will return to the market as delayed transactions following the end of the health crisis. Nearly six out of 10 members—59%—said buyers are delaying home purchases for a couple of months, while a similar share of members—57%—said sellers are delaying home sales for a couple of months.

“Home sales will decline this spring season because of unique economic and social consequences resulting from the coronavirus outbreak, but much of the activity looks to reappear later in the year,” said NAR Chief Economist Lawrence Yun. “Home prices will remain stable because of a pandemic-induced reduction in inventory coupled with less immediate concerns over foreclosures.”

NAR's latest Economic Pulse Flash Survey—conducted April 5-6, 2020—asked members questions about how the coronavirus outbreak has impacted the residential and commercial real estate markets. Several highlights of the member survey include:

- Due to the outbreak, 90% of members said buyer interest declined (see graph below), and 80% of members cited a decline in the number of homes on the market.
- Home prices look to hold steady after rising robustly before the pandemic. Almost three in four members—72%—said sellers have not reduced prices to attract buyers. Conversely, more than six in 10 members—63%—said buyers are expecting a decline in home prices as buyers sense less competition in the current environment.
- Technology plays a vital role as the real estate industry adapts to the new reality of managing deals virtually with social distancing directives in place. Members said the most common technology tools used to interact with clients are e-signatures, social media, messaging apps and virtual tours.
- Residential tenants are facing rent payment issues, but many delayed payment requests are being accommodated. Nearly half of property managers—46%—reported being able to accommodate tenants who cannot pay rent, and more than a quarter of individual landlords—27%—said the same. The recently enacted Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security (CARES) Act includes provisions on eviction prevention and small business loans and grants that are critical to keeping the rental market steady.

INTEREST IN YOUR MARKET?

Legislative Update

REALTORS® can begin applying now for several aid programs created by the $2-trillion coronavirus relief package signed into law last month.

Small businesses and sole proprietorships can apply now for forgivable Paycheck Protection Loans through existing Small Business Administration (SBA) lenders to cover payroll and certain other expenses. The program opens to the self-employed and independent contractors on April 10.

“The Paycheck Protection Program is open for the first round of applications, and many local SBA banks are racing to meet the high demand. We encourage members to keep trying, as the applications will be awarded on a first-come, first-serve basis,” says Shannon McGahn, senior vice president of government affairs for NAR. “These benefits are unprecedented, generous, and designed to help REALTORS® weather this temporary crisis. The application is simple and less than two pages, so I would urge anyone who is applying to fill them out right away.”

Read NAR'S guidance on the Paycheck Protection Program.

Included in this same law is a significant expansion of unemployment insurance for the self-employed and independent contractors, who are not usually covered under traditional state unemployment benefit programs. REALTORS® may be able to apply now for this benefit through their state's unemployment office, though some states may be waiting for further guidance from the Department of Labor.

We've received many questions from members asking for assistance finding and qualifying for the Small Business Administration (SBA) loans that passed as part of the CARES Act. Below we've collected answers to some of the most frequently asked questions:

- NAR offers many resources to help you understand the options at your disposal. However, NAR cannot assist any individual with completing their applications for any federal assistance.
- NAR keeps up-to-date FAQs online that answer many commonly asked questions, including questions on PPP, EIDL, and PUA. More information can be found at NAR.realtor/coronavirus.
- SBA loan programs are not available to independent contractors until tomorrow, April 10, 2020. Please be aware of that date as you make plans—SBA loan programs are not available to independent contractors until April 10.
- Banks administering the SBA programs may be delayed in responding to you because of the volume of applicants. Please be patient.

- State unemployment agencies administer the PUA program; all questions on that topic should be directed to the appropriate state agency and/or the state REALTOR® association resources.
- We know the financial hardships caused by the pandemic are stressful for many. Please remember to be kind to your fellow REALTORS® as well as those administering these federal programs.
